as to the men of this city. The program tomorrow, it is believed, will be one of the best of the season. Rev. John Timothy Stone, the pastor of Brown Memorial Presbyterian Church of Baltimore, will be the speaker. Mr. Stone is the successor of the late Maltbie D. Babcock, whose fame is world-wide. Mr. Stone is a young man and is very popular among young men. His coming to the big meeting, after repeated invitations, is most gratifying to his many friends in this city. Among the musical features will be sacred songs, sung by Mrs. Wm. T. The Marine Band will give a program of selections immediately before the formal opening of the meeting. The doors of the theater will be thrown open at 3:30. Epworth League Entertainment.

The social department of the Epworth League of the Metropolitan M. E. Church entertained the members and friends of the league last evening in a pleasing manner. The program opened with a piano duet by Mrs. Tuttle and Miss Zeff, two recitations by Miss Moore of the Deaconess National Training School, and a solo by Mrs. Welch, with Miss Hodges as pianist. This was followed by a pronouncing match, which was pronounced very amus-ing. The company was divided into two sides, under the leadership of Miss Rose-man and Mr. Wright. Mr. E. S. La Fetra was the teacher, and spelled the words which were pronounced by each side in turn. The words selected were those mostly in common, everyday use, and although there were judges, lawyers, doctors and pro fessors among the contestants, the ranks on both sides were rapidly thinned out until only two remained, Miss Roseman being declared the winner.

Zeisler Piano Recital.

Fannie Bloomfield Zeisler gave an interesting piano recital at the Columbia Theater yesterday afternoon to an audience that while not large, was highly enthusiastic. Mrs. Zeisler demonstrated her ability in a program that was out of the ordinary, but each number of which was played with intelligence and technical skill. The player's temperament was particularly noticeable in the Chopin selections, in the Mendelssohn "Spring Song," to which she added new beauty by her poetic reading, and the Liszt "Liebestraum." The Tschalkowsky number with which the program closed was given with a brilliancy and power that called forth an earnest demand for more. The second of the Chopin mazurkas had to be repeated. Her treatment of the Beethoven Sonata was musicianly and scholarly. Her program in full included Rameau's "Gayotte and Variations;" Beethoven's Sonata, op. 57; four Chopin selec-tions; Mendelssohn's Song Without Words, No. 6; Raff's "Rigaudon;" Liszt's "Liebes-traum" (Nocturne No. 3) and Tschaikowsky's paraphrase on the opera "Eugene
